The risk of foreign exchange fluctuation

In principle, Lacto Japan's business model does not bear foreign exchange risk.

Lacto Japan enters into sales contracts with domestic customers at the same time as entering into foreign currency purchase contracts with overseas suppliers.

In such cases, Lacto Japan hedges the foreign exchange risk by entering into a forward exchange contract for the amount of foreign currency purchased.

It is of note here that under Japanese accounting standards Lacto Japan applies “separate accounting treatments” to foreign currency exchange accounts.

There is always an impact on the presentation of gross profit and non-operating income/losses (foreign exchange gains/losses.)

Transactions that straddle the end of the financial period (sales during and after the next financial period) will have an impact on the presentation of periodic profit and loss.

Characteristics of presentation

Since the exchange rate used for recording differs depending on the stage of the transaction, foreign exchange gains and losses occur at intermediate stages of the transaction.

Ultimately, there is no impact on actual profit because sales and cost of sales are recorded based on the original exchange rate.

However, at intermediate stages prior to the recording of sales,

- ① there is an impact on the presentation of gross profit and non-operating income/losses, and
- ② as recording straddles financial periods, there is an impact on periodic profit and loss.

Illustration of Business Flow (Impact of Foreign Exchange Fluctuation)

Foreign exchange fluctuations have no impact on actual profit.

Accounting	Foreign exchange contract is signed (Rate as of ①) * Following treatment at the same time: • Foreign currency contract entered into with suppliers • Contract in yen amount entered into with customer = Actual profit/loss and cost determined	Cost of sales recorded = Actual rate of exchange (Rate as of ②)	Exchange difference resulting from fluctuation between Rate ① and ② is recorded as foreign exchange gain/loss	Sales recorded (Yen amount contracted at ①)
-------------------	--	---	---	--

Completion of transaction (completed up to ④)
When completed up to sale at ④, treatments at time of ① to ④ are aggregated and the same amount as the actual profit/loss and cost at ① is recorded.

If the end of the financial period arrives during the transaction
If the end of the financial period (quarter) is between the time of ③ and ④, the foreign exchange difference (non-operating profit/loss) is recorded in advance in the current financial period.

No change

Currency Rate:

Forex gain is recorded in advance as non-operating profit at time of ③.
The purchase price at ② is higher than the amount of the forward exchange contract at ①.

Forex loss is recorded in advance as non-operating loss at time of ③.
The purchase price at ② is cheaper than the yen amount of the contract at ①.

A wide-angle photograph of a rural landscape. In the foreground, a herd of dark-colored cows is grazing on a lush green field. The sun is low on the horizon to the right, creating a warm, golden glow and long shadows. The sky is filled with wispy, white clouds. In the background, a large barn with a corrugated metal roof is visible on the left, and several utility poles with power lines stretch across the middle ground.
